The Change Catalyst: Using Evidence to Elevate Practice

Transform Insights into Action. Drive Growth with Confidence

Who is this for?

Campus leaders, instructional coaches, and data teams who want to move beyond tracking numbers to acting on them. Ideal for schools preparing for data-driven PLCs, growth conversations, or campus improvement planning.

Format:

- Length: Half day (3 hours) or full day (6 hours)
- Delivery: On site or virtual
- Group size: Up to 30 participants
- Materials: Participant resource guide included

What participants leave able to do:

- Read student and campus data with confidence and spot the trends worth acting on
- Distinguish between data noise and evidence of real growth or need
- Translate findings into concrete instructional next steps
- Lead evidence-based conversations that build buy-in instead of defensiveness

Session Flow

- Opening case. Participants examine a real campus data set and share what they see before any framework is introduced.
- Analysis moves. Guided practice in identifying trends, outliers, and root causes.
- From insight to action. Teams turn one finding into a specific, evidence-based strategy with a timeline.
- Growth conversations. Role play delivering data findings to colleagues in ways that motivate rather than judge.
- Action plan close. Each participant leaves with a one-page plan tied to their own campus data.

"We had binders full of data and no idea what to do with it. This session changed that. My team left with an actual plan tied to our own numbers, and we executed it the following Monday."
